

xšnaoθrahe ahurahe mazdā

Detail from above the entrance of Tehran's fire temple, 1286š/1917-18. Photo by © Shervin Farridnejad

The Digital Archive of Brief Notes & Iran Review (DABIR)

ISSN: 2470-4040

www.dabirjournal.org

Samuel Jordan Center for Persian Studies and Culture
University of California, Irvine
1st Floor Humanities Gateway
Irvine, CA 92697-3370

Editor-in-Chief

Touraj Daryaee (University of California, Irvine)

Editors

Parsa Daneshmand (Oxford University)

Arash Zeini (Freie Universität Berlin)

Shervin Farridnejad (Freie Universität Berlin)

Judith A. Lerner (ISAW NYU)

Book Review Editor

Shervin Farridnejad (Freie Universität Berlin)

Advisory Board

Samra Azarnouche (École pratique des hautes études); Dominic P. Brookshaw (Oxford University); Matthew Canepa (University of Minnesota); Ashk Dahlén (Uppsala University); Peyvand Firouzeh (Cambridge University); Leonardo Gregoratti (Durham University); Frantz Grenet (Collège de France); Wouter F.M. Henkelman (École Pratique des Hautes Études); Rasoul Jafarian (Tehran University); Nasir al-Ka'abi (University of Kufa); Andromache Karanika (UC Irvine); Agnes Korn (CNRS, UMR Mondes Iranien et Indien); Lloyd Llewellyn-Jones (University of Edinburgh); Jason Mokhtarin (University of Indiana); Ali Mousavi (UC Irvine); Mahmoud Omidsalar (CSU Los Angeles); Antonio Panaino (University of Bologna); Alka Patel (UC Irvine); Richard Payne (University of Chicago); Khodadad Rezakhani (History, UCLA); Vesta Sarkhosh Curtis (British Museum); M. Rahim Shayegan (UCLA); Rolf Strootman (Utrecht University); Giusto Traina (University of Paris-Sorbonne); Mohsen Zakeri (University of Göttingen)

Logo design by Charles Li

Layout and typesetting by Kourosh Beighpour

Contents

Notes

- 1- Hamid Bikas Shourkai: La satrapie de Phrygie hellespontique (Daskyleion): des origines à la chute de l'Empire perse achéménide 1
- 2- Stanley M. Burstein: Ctesias' Sources: A Suggestion 17
- 3- Kiarash Gholami: Some Remarks on the Inscription and Attribution of a Transitional Arab-Sāsānian Dirham from Merv 21
- 4- John Hylland: Hyštaspes, Gobryas, and elite marriage politics in Teispid Persia 30
- 5- Thomas Jügel: The Aramaeogram of the Copula in Zoroastrian Middle Persian and a Note on the 2sg. Optative 36
- 6- Firoze M. Kotwal: Incantations For The Festival Of The Farmers And For The Consecration Of Gravel (nīrang ī jashan ī burzigarān o nīrang ī sang-rēzā yaštan) 42
- 7- Firoze M. Kotwal: Religious Injunction to be Observed when a Zoroastrian Expires During the Gatha Days 48
- 8- Daniel T. Potts: The lands of the Balahute and Lallari 52
- 9- Daniel T. Potts: The Persian Gulf in the Cosmographia of the Anonymous Geographer of Ravenna, c. 700 AD 57
- 10- Razieh Tassob: Language and Legend in Early Kushan Coinage: Progression and Transformation 71

Book Reviews

- 11- Carlo G. Cereti: Review of Foltz, Richard. Religions of Iran: From Prehistory to the Present. London: Oneworld Publications, 2013. 314pp. ISBN 978-1-78074. 86
- 12- Sajad Amiri Bavandpour: تذکره آرییل (وقایع نامه آریلا)، متن کهن اثر مؤلف ناشناس، ترجمه محمود فاضلی بیرجندی، تهران، مرکز دایره المعارف بزرگ اسلامی (مرکز پژوهش‌های ایرانی و اسلامی)، ۱۸۵ صص، ۱۳۹۰. 90
- 13- Adam Benkato: Review of Barbati, Chiara. The Christian Sogdian Gospel Lectionary E5 in Context. Veröffentlichungen Zur Iranistik 81. Wien: Österreichischen Akademie der Wissenschaften, 2015.—357pp. 95
- 14- Yazdan Safae: Aliyari Babolghani, Salman, Tahrīr-e 'ilāmi-ye katibe-ye dāryuš-e bozorg dar bisotūn. pīšgoftār, daštur-e 'ilāmi-ye haḡāmanešī, ḡarfnevisī, tarḡome, moḡābele bā tahrīrhāye digar, yāddāsthā va vāže-nāme [The Elamite Version of Darius the Great's Inscription at Bisotun. Introduction, grammar of Achaemenid Elamite, transliteration, Persian translation, comparison with other versions, notes and index], Tehran: Našr-e Markaz. 1394š/2015. Pp. 268. ISBN 978-964-213-272-0. 98

dabj̄r

Digital Archive of Brief notes & Iran Review

No. 5.2018

ISSN: 2470 - 4040

© Samuel Jordan Center for Persian Studies & Culture
University of California, Irvine

Aliyari Babolghani, Salman, Taḥrīr-e ʿilāmi-ye katibe-ye dāryuš-e bozorg dar bisotūn. pišgoftār, dastur-e ʿilāmi-ye haḥāmanešī, ḥarfnevisī, tarğome, moqābele bā taḥrīrhāye digar, yāddāsthā va vāže-nāme [The Elamite Version of Darius the Great's Inscription at Bisotun. Introduction, grammar of Achaemenid Elamite, transliteration, Persian translation, comparison with other versions, notes and index], Tehran: Našr-e Markaz. 1394š/ 2015. Pp. 268. ISBN 978-964-213-272-0.

Yazdan Safaee

Achaemenid Elamite, Old Persian, and Achaemenid Babylonian are the languages by which Darius the Great presents the account of his vital triumphs in his monumental relief in Bisotun. Since this inscription has been a crucial key to the decipherment of cuneiform script and definitely a milestone to grasp many ancient languages, scholars have been paying proper attention to dealing with it. However, before the book under review being published one could see the lack of a direct translation from one of these three versions of Bisotun inscription into Persian by Iranian scholars. It is worth pointing out that there is more than a hundred years gap between Aliyari's work and one of the most important scholarly treatment of the Elamite version of the aforementioned inscription, Weissbach's Die Keilinschriften der Achämeniden in 1911. Yet, the Elamite language has attracted more attention in recent decades. In this regard, the edition by Grillot-Susini, Herrenschildt, and Malbran-Labat is a must-read work¹. The present book is the first attempt to treat the Achaemenid Elamite version of Bisotun inscription in Persian, which is the product of the author's doctoral thesis.

The book consists of an introduction and four parts, in which the author deals with the grammar of Achaemenid Elamite, the transliteration and the Persian translation, followed by notes, a comprehensive glossary and bibliography. The introduction is dedicated to a description of the Bisotun monument and the versions of the inscription, the research background and finally the methodology. As Elamite is a less well-known language for the Persian-speaking audience, the author's main goal has been to introduce the Elamite language while examining the inscription.

In the beginning of his first chapter, which focuses on the grammar, Aliyari summarises up-to-date information on the word "Elam", the scripts by which the Elamite language has been written and a brief history of the language. Despite the silent and isolated nature of Elamite, which is considered to be an important barrier in tackling the linguistic problems, Aliyari has managed to reach an understanding of the phonology by picturing a general view in first step and then going through the details. Since the text is in Achaemenid Elamite, the author has concentrated on those language varieties which are common in Achaemenid Elamite rather than the older versions of Elamite. In order to clarify the subject, one can refer to case of 'h' which was eliminated in Achaemenid Elamite due to which the author omits it from the list of consonants.²

Next, in the same chapter, Aliyari deals with the morphology in which he treats nominal morphology, case, adjectives, pronouns, verbal morphology, adverbs, numerals, and interjections. On account of their importance, the author has principally focused on nominal morphology, pronouns, and verbal morphology. Nominal inflection divides into two genders, animate and inanimate. Achaemenid Elamite has demonstrative, personal, possessive, reflexive, relative, indefinite, and resumptive pronouns. Aliyari believes that the language has one verbal conjugation and two nominal conjugations and thus he does not follow the idea of some Elamitologists³ who think of a third nominal conjugation. In case of necessity, Aliyari demonstrates the differences between Middle and Achaemenid Elamite conjugations. In the content of this chapter, the author deals with syntax containing word order and typology, agreement, agreement for kinship nouns, numbers, prepositions and postpositions, resumptive pronouns, negative and prohibitive particles, conjunction, relative clauses, and finally direct discourse.

The second chapter is dedicated to transliteration, Persian translation, and comparison with other versions. The narrative part consists of a lengthy sequence of events: the defeat of Gaumāta, the ascending to the throne by Darius and various campaigns against the rebels. The comparisons are mentioned

1-. Grillot-Susini, Françoise, Clarisse Herrenschildt & Florence Malbran-Labat. 1993. «La Version Élamite de la Trilingue de Behistun: un Nouvelle Lecture», Journal Asiatique CCLXXXI 1- 2: 19- 59.

2-. However, Stolper who deals with the Elamite language in a broader way mentions it. See Stolper, Matthew w. 2004. Elamite, In Woodard, Roger D. (ed.), The Cambridge Encyclopedia of the World's Ancient Languages, pp. 60-94. Cambridge, Cambridge University Press.

3-. Grillot-susini, Françoise [avec la collaboration de Claude Roche]. 1987. Éléments de Grammaire Élamite. Paris: Éditions Recherche sur les Civilisations. Especially, see p. 33 where she writes as follows: «Il existe une conjugaison verbale et trois conjugaisons nominales; ces conjugaisons nominales sont construites sur les deux participes et sur la base verbale». And see also p. 35 for the third nominal conjugation.

in the footnotes. In case of personal names, Aliyari gives the Old Persian transcriptions. However, the same is not always true for the Achaemenid Babylonian variants. For example, Aliyari does not mention Achaemenid Babylonian variants for Auramazda. He tries, however, to show the differences between the versions by giving their translations (from Old Persian, Achaemenid Babylonian and Aramaic) in footnotes.

Photographing the inscription and re-examining previous studies have potentially enabled Aliyari to reach to a better reading.⁴ The book, however, does not include any photographs, so any assessment on his readings should be taken with caution, or at least be postponed until the time when the photos are at disposal. The author tries to follow the original text as closely as possible but also pays attention to the eloquence of the writing. His Persian translation is clear and fluent.

Acquisitive notes on controversial issues from the inscription, in chapter 3, are intended to clarify the reasons for author's choices for transliteration and translation. Most of them are philological, but some of them deal with historical and/or cultural points. Next, there is a glossary, followed by a comprehensive bibliography.

Concerning the growing attention to the role of the Elamite elements in our understanding of cultural, historical, and socio-political aspects of Achaemenid Empire, we can consider the book under review as a definite progress in this field of study. To highlight the importance of the book, one can point out that it offers a manual for Achaemenid Elamite followed by a well-examined text which is completely thought-provoking for those who are intended to acquire knowledge of Achaemenid Elamite, which is about to place in the centrality of academic interests on this very subject.

4-. In his paper, Ela Filippone refers to Aliyari's reading several times: Filippone, Ela. 2016. Goat-Skins, Horses and Camels: How did Darius' army cross the Tigris? In Redard, Céline. (ed.), Des Contrées Avestiques à Mahabad, via Bisotun: Études Offertes en Hommage à Pierre Lecoq, pp. 25-60. Paris: Recherches et Publications.